Getting involved...

C-F-A-N

Performer's Academy has formed a new partnership with the Community Fine Arts Network from Schertz, Cibolo, Universal City and the Schertz-Cibolo- Universal City ISD. The goal of the network is to "promote greater awareness of Fine Arts."

PA was fortunate enough to participate in the first Artisan's Fair. Elementary school students were exposed to all types of art; from theatre, music, painting, and dance. "Being able to sponsor the fair was a great way to reach younger students that we don't usually get to meet. I am excited that Performer's Academy is able to be involved with an organization dedicated to all forms of art," PA owner Richard Lopez said.

Look for more collaborations between Performer's Academy and C-F-A-N in the future!

Staying in shape...

PA instructors stay "modern"

Always wanting to give the best education to its students, PA instructors have been taking modern dance classes at the Connally's Dance studio in San Antonio.

Connally's is one of the premier dance studios in the area. Currently the San Antonio Metropolitan Ballet is in residence at the studio. The Connally's staff is highly trained and offer classes in all varieties of dance.

PA aims to explore new and unique ways to design and choreograph. Connally's is a great avenue to explore the different possibilities of body movement. This training will also re-focus the PA staff's attention on the fundamental movement technique which is vital to the visual arts.
